DABBLE-An Art Exploration Series

Curious about art but not sure where to begin? Have you ever wanted to try a new medium without buying supplies or signing up for a full class?

Dabble was created for the curious.

Thanks to a generous grant from the Roundhouse Foundation, Dabble is a free community art experience that gives participants the opportunity to explore a variety of art materials and techniques in a fun, welcoming environment.

During the session, you'll rotate through three different artist-led stations, spending approximately 30 minutes at each. Local artists will introduce you to their materials, demonstrate basic techniques, and invite you to experiment and play.

This isn't about creating a finished masterpiece. In fact, we hope you'll let go of that expectation altogether. The goal is simply to explore, ask questions, and discover what inspires you.

Think of Dabble as speed dating for art materials—you never know which one you'll fall in love with!
